

ABSTRACT

Title: A System for Managing User Profile Data.

5           In a communications environment, a system for managing user profile data, comprising:

- a) a network interface layer operatively associated with a communications network,
- b) a data storage layer, operative to store user profile data relating to the
- 10           communications network, and
- c) a data conversion layer, functionally disposed between the network interface and the data storage layers and which is capable of converting the user profile data into a plurality of communications network formats.